

CATERING SERVICES SOFTWARE

Invoicing software built for how a caterer actually prices a job

A caterer doesn't sell rice and chicken separately — they sell "Wedding Menu for 100," and every ingredient behind it needs to come off the shelf automatically at whatever scale the event calls for. Invoice2Track treats every package as a recipe, the same system built for restaurant menus, so nothing has to be tracked by hand.

How it works

- 1 Build the package as a recipe
Set up a menu package once from its raw ingredients and quantities — the same recipe system built for restaurant kitchens.
- 2 Quote the event
Scale the package to the headcount and build the estimate — menu, any add-ons, and the date, all in one document the client can review.
- 3 Book the date
The event goes on a shared calendar, so nothing gets double-committed on a busy wedding season weekend.
- 4 Take the deposit
Record the advance payment when the booking is confirmed, tracked separately from the balance still due closer to the event.
- 5 Serve and settle
Selling the package deducts every ingredient automatically, scaled to the quantity served — then the final invoice applies the deposit and shows what's left to collect.

Key capabilities

• Recipe-based packages Build a package once from its raw ingredients — selling it deducts every ingredient automatically, scaled to the quantity sold.	• Event-date booking Every booking carries its own date on a shared calendar, so nothing gets double-committed on a busy wedding season weekend.
• Deposit now, balance later Record an advance payment when the booking is made and the remaining balance closer to the event — the same partial-payment tracking any invoice supports.	• Ingredient stock control Raw ingredients are tracked as real stock, with vendor purchasing to restock them as events use them up.

- GST-ready billing

Turn on GST billing and every printed estimate and invoice applies the correct tax treatment automatically.

- Multiple packages per event

Quote several menu options or add-ons on the same estimate, so a client can compare before committing.
